CAPITOU ÔDE

Located in the heart of the largest classified natural site in Languedoc, Château Capitoul takes advantage of its unique location and stands as an exclamation point at the end of the peninsula. Ôde is a tribute to its Mediterranean terroir and the French department of Aude where Capitoul is located.

SOIL TYPES

Clay-limestone vineyard, home to pine groves, moorland and garrigue, is strongly influenced by sea breezes, thus producing very fresh wines.

CHÂTEAU CAPITOU WHITE OROS-LES PORTES VINEYARD

Château Capitoul, with its precious stone and pebble-strewn Mediterranean vineyard, is like a diamond in the rough set in the rolling hills of La Clape. With 62 ha under vine at the tip of the La Clape hill range, its terroir is the appellation's most maritime. Its vineyard dates back to the 14th century, when it was farmed under the aegis of Narbonne Cathedral, which gave the Château its name. In 2015, La Clape entered the select group of Languedoc fine wines, joining the collection of prestigious, internationally renowned French appellations.

VINEYARD SITE

Ideally located amidst Languedoc's largest national park, Château Capitoul's vineyard is farmed sustainably. Blessed by OROS, the gods of the mountains, Château Capitoul shows incredibly diverse site-expressiveness. The highest block in our vineyard, Les Portes soars skyward. It is home to rich, complex soils of limestone rock over a bed of black earth that is unique to the La Clape hill range.
